□ H ⊔ B B° | accenture

CASE STUDY

Meet Stephen from Shine & Dash Creative

HIS BUSINESS

Stephen runs a medium-sized digital creative agency that wins business at a global level. In order to stay competitive, he must keep up with a workforce that requires a new level of flexibility and isn't always physically in the same place. With that, come risks that were never part of the game before. See how Chubb can help in four different ways.

WORKPLACE SCENARIOS

Securing the home office

With so many people working from home, it's difficult for Stephen to make sure each workspace is secure, and to make sure his steady stream of contractors are properly onboarded. As a result, his lead designer suffers a cyber attack, and separately one of the new contractors inadvertently uses the wrong file sharing platform and exposes confidential information, resulting in two cyber breaches for the organisation.

Coverage Section

Cyber

Injured at home, on the job

After working at home from her work approved desk for months, Keisha develops lower back pain and requires specialist treatment.

Coverage Section

Work From Home GPA $\stackrel{\circ}{\square}$

World traveling with care

In preparing to send his team overseas for a client video shoot, Stephen learns there is growing risk of civil unrest in the area. He cancels the trip and realises he needs a new framework to define essential business travel — and a plan for handling any situation that may arise.

Coverage Section

Business Travel Accident

Social networking never sleeps

The company's social media manager posts something on the company's Twitter account that is misleading about and defamatory to an employee of one of their competitors, triggering a defamation lawsuit against the company.

Coverage Section

General Liability Umbrella & Excess Liability

Chubb risk specialists say

Due to COVID-19, businesses were forced to shift to a fully remote workforce. Without the right equipment, tools, and processes in place, they wouldn't be able to function. As a result, telecommuting is no longer the exception to the rule.

But, while remote and flexible work arrangements are often more convenient for employees and may enable a company to hire or keep specialised talent, they also introduce new types of risks.

Makeshift home offices that don't properly address ergonomic best practices may lead to an increase in long-term injuries. Lax work habits and environmental inconsistencies in air quality and lighting can also affect the overall wellbeing and performance of employees. The risk of slips and falls still remains in the home, just as it does in the office.

Reliance on home networks and the use of contract employees — potentially with less facetime — can also lead to additional cyber exposure, whether from poor protocol training for short-term hires or from bad actors

Coupled with shifting to remote work, attracting skilled talent — particularly technology savvy employees — can be a major concern for businesses. Along with attractive salary and benefits, creating a flexible company culture to entice desirable employees is an important priority for many. As businesses meet these staffing challenges, it's crucial to note that some workforce accommodations and perks, if not handled carefully, can threaten business health.

Even with heightened focus on appropriate workplace behavior, individual conduct is difficult to control; and reliance on videoconferencing technology can create uncomfortable situations for remote employees. There is always the risk that an inappropriate employee action will trigger litigation and cause reputational damage to the company. Indeed, many new workforce models and practices call into question where the real risk lines are drawn.

CHUBB PRODUCTS TO CONSIDER

Work From Home GPA

Employment Practices Liability

General Liability

Umbrella & Excess Liability

Business Travel Accident

Cyber ERM

Professional Indemnity

CHUBB'

The material presented herein is not intended to provide legal or other expert advice as to any of the subjects mentioned, but rather is presented for general information only. You should consult knowledgeable legal counsel or other knowledgeable experts as to any legal or technical questions you may have. This presentation is solely for informational purposes.

Insurance is issued and underwritten by Chubb Insurance Australia Limited ABN 23 001 642 020, AFSL No. 239687 (Chubb). Chubb only provides general advice and does not consider your objectives, financial situation or needs. To decide if this product is right for you, please read the relevant Product Disclosure Statement (PDS). Terms, conditions, exclusions and limits apply.

accenture

Portions copyright © 2021 Chubb; portions copyright © 2020 Accenture. This document makes descriptive reference to trademarks that may be owned by others. The use of such trademarks herein is not an assertion of ownership of such trademarks by Accenture or Chubb and is not intended to represent or imply the existence of an association between Accenture, Chubb and the lawful owners of such trademarks

This document has been published for information and illustrative purposes only and is not intended to serve as advice of any nature whatsoever. The information contained herein and the references made in this document is in good faith, neither Accenture nor any of its directors, agents or employees give any warranty of accuracy (whether express or implied) nor accepts any liability as a result of reliance upon the information including (but not limited) content advice, statement or opinion contained in this document. This document also contains certain information available in the public domain, created and maintained by private and public organizations. Accenture does not control or guarantee the accuracy relevance, timelines or completeness of such information.