

MediaGuard® Liability Insurance

Delivering Security in a World of Risk

CHUBB®

Media and entertainment companies, such as publishers, broadcasters and producers grapple with a growing range of increasingly serious media liability exposures. Actually, all types of companies have exposure to media risks if they have a website or communicate information in any way. Regardless of business, a media liability lawsuit can cause financial and reputational damage to your company.

Chubb has been insuring organizations with content exposures for more than 45 years. We understand that in today's constantly shifting legal landscape, the precise nature of media liability lawsuits can be difficult to predict.

That's why you need Chubb's MediaGuard® liability insurance to provide you with broad coverage designed specifically to help you manage media liability risks.

Media Liability Protection

Chubb's various MediaGuard® liability insurance products help protect your company against lawsuits alleging:

- Defamation
- Invasion of privacy
- Emotional distress
- Copyright and trademark infringement
- Misappropriation
- Advertising E&O
- Negligent publication

Even if no one in your organization was at fault, defense and settlement costs can escalate to hundreds of thousands (if not millions) of dollars. In recent years, the Media Law Resource Center reports an average initial jury award of $2.6 million and a median initial jury award of $1.1 million.¹
