Incident Response &
Claims Management

One single point of contact

We'll introduce you to your individual global accounts contact at Chubb.

Engagement

Once you've decided to work with us we'll provide confidentiality agreements before we begin our assessments.

Assessment

Traditional policy applications don't work for large, multinational cyber risks. There's not enough information to really assess the risk profile or offer valid advice.

We partner with you to measure the risks (with our initial questionnaire) and review together (call or meeting?) for a much more interactive view of your risk.

Loss Control

Informed by our assessments and carried out by industry leading security experts, you'll get access to our five step process:

1. Core security services

Review of the implementation of, and compliance with, industry standard security controls for protecting information.

2. Enterprise Risk Management

Measuring board level awareness of and engagement with; cyber risk culture and governance, the risk management framework, the threat and risk assessment structure and the risk reporting processes.

3. Response readiness

Measuring detection and response capabilities in the event of network security or confidential data compromise.

Incident Response and Claims Management

4. Business interruption calculation

We will report on the risk management calculating the financial outcome based on your organisation's ability to withstand and recover from interruptions in network operations.

5. Threat intelligence and analysis

Provided on an ongoing basis throughout the life of the policy, the analysis combines data from multiple vendors and our own proprietary claims data, giving you insight into the current threats to your business.

A dedicated incident response manager will mobilise the expert assistance from our panel within 24 hours upon instruction. This may include IT forensics, public relations experts, legal teams, fraud specialists, forensic accountants, and other necessary assistance.

Once the incident is contained, the incident manager will support the recovery of your business activities.
