What have we paid lately?

- A bank is sued when a slip-and-fall accident occurs on a residence managed by the bank's trust department. Chubb defended the bank, negotiated a settlement, and dispatched risk engineering services to all owned properties to develop a plan to reduce the likelihood of a future event.
- Shareholders of a publicly traded bank sued certain officers alleging securities fraud under Section 10(b) and individual liability under Section 20(a) of the Securities Act of 1934. The plaintiffs alleged that the bank's loan portfolio shifted from what the bank had always disclosed in their public filings. After releasing the results of their loan portfolio, the bank saw a significant decline in their stock price which precipitated the suit. Chubb's policy responded to the lawsuit.
- A fire damaged a data center and crippled an asset manager's sales and trading operation. Within a few hours, emergency generators were put in place, enabling the firm to bring operations as close to normal as possible. Chubb paid the physical damage caused by the fire, extra expense for the generators, and resulting business income loss.
